KENT COUNTY -- It's a West Michigan murder gone unsolved, but Thursday, friends of Renee Pagel will gather again to keep her memory alive.

Pagel was killed at her northern Kent County home last summer, and the group comes together on a regular basis to discuss the case. They also organize monthly search parties.

Detectives say they have no new leads in the case, but they do have a person of interest. Court documents, pulled shortly after her death, list Pagel's estranged husband as a suspect.
